

New Year 2018

We are currently well into the New Year and are waiting developments on the political scene that may make or break the future of America. Lying, liberal, pro illegal alien, Muslim apologist politicians are doing whatever they can to undermine our nation's sovereignty. The fate of our nation is in the balance.

Ironically, 2018 is the year of famous anniversaries. Those of us who served in Vietnam, especially those who were there in early 1968, remember this as the 50th anniversary of the Tet Offensive when American forces virtually wiped out the Viet Cong whose units had to be replenished by North Vietnamese soldiers. It is also 100th anniversary of the end of World War II, the War to End All Wars in which the American Expeditionary Force under General Blackjack Pershing was instrumental in ending the war favorably against Germany and her allies.

America has long sacrificed to ensure the preservation of freedom. But now, those politicians who have never committed their lives to sacrifice for our nation by serving in our armed forces are willing to throw away everything that we have achieved by undermining the efforts of this administration to Make America Great Again. The next few days may be critical for the future of our nation and, if the forces of truth justice and freedom are defeated in the political arena, it may result in internal conflict. However, we also realize that those who oppose us, if the forces of truth, justice and freedom which we represent are victorious, are very likely to react violently. The political turmoil could conceivably become our own domestic TET Offensive. We must be prepared to defeat our adversaries just as we defeated the Viet Cong whom they, like Ken Burns, seem to think were honorable. The time for reckoning may long be overdue but you may be sure that outside spectators such as China and the 57 Muslim nations will see turmoil in the United States as an opportunity to destroy us. Hopefully, that will not occur. We should not allow ourselves to be unaware and uninformed. To be uninformed is to be unprepared and we are unprepared at our peril.

May the Almighty allow Americas problems to be solve peacefully, if not, may He help us to defeat the forces of evil whose objective is America's destruction.
